(Version 2.2, Date: 19.06.2026)

Adequate explanations

Explanation of Main Features

N26 for Under 18s allows you to receive an additional Mastercard debit card, which you may provide to your pre-designated minor child for their use. The card is issued in the name of the minor and enables them to execute basic payment transactions (such as store purchases, online shopping, and ATM withdrawals) within the rules set by you.

It is not an independent bank account for the minor, but rather a sub-account technically and legally tied to your main N26 account. The account is entirely set up and managed via your N26 app. You retain the ultimate administrative rights, including setting spending limits, blocking the card, and monitoring transactions in real-time.

The sub-account operates strictly on a credit basis. This means the minor can only spend money that is already available on the account. There is no possibility to overdraw or take out credit. Any technical overdraft due to, for example, "offline presentments" will be debited directly from your main account. You are required to instruct the minor on the proper use of the card and to supervise them accordingly.

Special Consequences for the Consumer

Since a minor has limited legal capacity under the law, you remain liable for all contractual obligations, card usage, and any potential disputes with third parties arising from the minor's transactions. Any misuse of the card by the child will be attributed to you.

To protect the minor, N26 automatically blocks transaction categories that are illegal or inappropriate for minors (such as gambling, betting, or certain adult merchants). The ultimate responsibility for monitoring daily spending rests with you.

Consequences of missed or late payments

All applicable fees and costs are collected regardless of your account balance. Should these charges result in a negative balance, the account will enter a technical overdraft where interest accrues at the rate specified in the price list.

Technical steps for concluding a contract

Requirements and supported smartphones

To order and use the N26 for under 18s product, you need an N26 account. To use your N26 account, you need a linked smartphone. While you can use some account features without a linked phone, for security reasons, essential functions only work on the phone specifically connected to your account. Because your smartphone is used as a personal authentication device, only one phone can be linked to your account at a time. For security reasons, the linked smartphone may also be required to verify logins from other devices. Please ensure you meet the minimum system requirements for your smartphone's operating system (iOS/Android) and our N26 app version. The latest versions and further information can be found in the N26 Support Center. For security reasons, we are forced to discontinue service for older operating system and N26 app versions. We will notify you eight weeks before we discontinue support for an operating system version if the N26 app will no longer be usable for you as a result, and ask you to update your software during this time.

In addition to basic functions, such as viewing your transactions and settings, the following functions are only available on your linked smartphone:

- Successfully completing the registration with N26;
- Confirming transfers and standing orders;
- Confirming MoneyBeams and Cash26 transactions;
- Applying for an overdraft facility;
- Linking your smartphone.

If you don't currently have a smartphone linked to your N26 account, simply launch the N26 app on your phone. Depending on your smartphone, the N26 app is available through third-party distribution platforms ("app stores"). Downloading the app requires prior registration and login in the respective app store.

After installing the app, you will be automatically guided through all the necessary steps to connect your smartphone. The following steps await you:

- Confirmation of your mobile phone number;
- Receipt of a four-digit code via SMS;
- Enter the code in the app to complete the linking process.

If the phone number displayed during the linking process is incorrect, or if you do not receive the SMS with the linking code even though the phone number is correct, please contact Customer Service.
